After my medical evaluation, I advise that the patient self-quarantine due to concerns related to COVID-19, since the patient is unable to telework and in the last 14 days either has had contact with a COVID-19 infected person and/or has been in a COVID-19 risk area.

Therefore, the patient is entitled to up to 2 weeks of fully paid sick leave according to the Families First Coronavirus Response Act, Sec. 5102, (a), (2) ("The employee has been advised by a health-care provider to self-quarantine due to concerns related to COVID-19."). The employer will receive a dollar-for-dollar reimbursement from the Internal Revenue Service (the "IRS") in the form of a tax credit and can request an advance of anticipated tax credits and refunds.

For the following dates:

04-10-2020 to 04-24-2020

Regards,

Dr. Nick Note, MD
